ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Weather: Hot and heavy during the wet season (December to June), drier the rest of the year. During the wet season, rain falls in short showers at the end of the day. Altitude plays a crucial role in temperature variations, ranging from Bali's typical tropical climate (as in Amed and along the coast) to a temperate climate in high-altitude areas around volcanoes, such as Mount Batur, Mount Agung and Besakih. Average min/max temperatures: Amed and rest of coast: 38˚/28˚ Highlands: 12˚/25˚ Health information: Vaccinations: No vaccinations are required by the Indonesian authorities. However, anti-tetanus and typhoid vaccinations, as well as hepatitis A and B, are strongly recommended.

Check that your booster shots are up to date (diphtheria, tetanus and polio). Malaria: the risk of malaria is low, but not totally absent. It is essential to seek advice from your GP, who will be able to prescribe anti-malarial treatment. Dengue fever is endemic in certain regions. It is advisable to take precautions against mosquito bites. Water: Be careful with water. Avoid drinking tap water or water out in the open. Drink boiled water, or water treated with micro-pure or hydroclonazone, or better still, drinks in closed bottles. Hand hygiene: wash hands with soap before eating (or antibacterial hydroalcoholic gel). Sun: you're in the tropics, and part of your stay takes place at altitude. Don't forget to protect your skin from the sun's rays. Wear a T-shirt, lycra or long-sleeved sweatshirt, and carry sunscreen.

Dentist: a short visit before setting off can detect any untimely cavities, which the altitude is sure to stimulate. Personal pharmacy: it's best to bring your usual medicines if you're taking medication, sun block, lip balm, a small roll of elastoplast (for blisters) or “double skin”, neutral eye drops, anti-diarrhoea, healing ointment and mosquito repellent. Please note:

- There are no “standard” antibiotics in our pharmacy, so each guest must bring their own treatment according to their tolerance. No additional travel insurance
- is included in your registration. We remind you that it is essential that you have “medical care abroad” and “repatriation” cover, including “search and rescue”.

Whatever insurance you have, don't forget to take the necessary information with you on your trip: the name and contact details (telephone, e-mail) of the assistance company and the number of the policy taken out. This information will be requested on arrival by our local correspondent. Currency: The currency unit is the Indonesian rupiah (IDR). As at 15/08/2024, 1 euro = 17,265.77 IDR Electricity: 220v, 60 Hz, Europe plug Airlines: Quatar Airways, Cathay pacific, Klm, Turkish Airline, Singapore airline Time difference: 7 hours more in winter and 6 hours more in summer.

Plus: Balinese culture is very different from ours; courtesy and delicacy are absolutely essential (no inappropriate photos). Be careful with children: don't give gifts as a matter of course (sweets, pens). Above all, don't give money, as this will encourage begging, which will cause problems for the groups following you.
